

UK, Ireland & International Theatre Associations

A Guide to the roles and activities of key voluntary and official organisations promoting theatre and performing arts worldwide, with a special emphasis on those related to Theatre for Young Audiences.

Editor: Paul Harman 2010

UK & International Theatre Associations

There are many voluntary associations for drama and theatre by, with and for children and young people in the UK and Ireland and a wider international family of associations and organisations supports the promotion and development of theatre and drama worldwide. (see list on next page)

The relationship between these international associations is complex. Some are semi-official. The International Theatre Institute is recognised by UNESCO as the representative organisation for all the performing arts but some others, such as UNIMA and AITA-IATA, are also regarded as partners by UNESCO. As UNESCO is based in Paris, many associations founded in the 1950's are known by their French names or acronyms.

This material has been gathered with financial support from Arts Council England, through a bursary for international development of UK Theatre for Young Audiences

Towards a World Theatre Council

Notes of a meeting held in London on 10 June 2010

Background

Following discussions at the conference of the World Association for Arts Education in November 2009, between Dan Baron Cohen, President of IDEA, Paddy O'Dwyer, President of AITA/IATA, Tobias Biancone, Secretary General of ITI and Wolfgang Schneider, it was agreed to meet in London to discuss closer collaboration between International Associations, possibly by the formation of a World Theatre Council recognised as a partner by UNESCO

Present: Representatives of ITI, ASSITEJ, AITA/IATA, ETC, UNIMA

Conclusions

1. None of those present believed that a new organisation was either necessary or desirable but consideration of a World Theatre Council had been useful to establish common purposes and ideals.
2. ITI already exists to deliver the co-ordination and representation of the Performing Arts through UNESCO to the UN - and so to world governments.
3. The following protocol presented by WS was agreed in principle:
 - A. ITI should be the umbrella organisation for the Performing Arts
 - B. The agenda of ITI in this role should include:
 - a. Cultural Policy Issues related to the Performing Arts
 - b. The social and economic situation of performing artists
 - c. The development of theatre as Arts Education
 - C. ITI should provide a database for Events and Projects in Performing Arts
 - D. ITI and the organisations present should organise a conference where all the different performing arts associations could present their approaches to a concrete, common topic, such as the role of theatre in society or the development of cultural identity in an era of globalisation.

United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO)

Building peace in the minds of people.

UNESCO works to create the conditions for dialogue among civilizations, cultures and peoples, based upon respect for commonly shared values. It is through this dialogue that the world can achieve global visions of sustainable development encompassing observance of human rights, mutual respect and the alleviation of poverty, all of which are at the heart of UNESCO'S mission and activities.

The broad goals and concrete objectives of the international community – as set out in the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) – underpin all UNESCO'S strategies and activities. Thus UNESCO'S unique competencies in education, the sciences, culture and communication and information contribute towards the realization of those goals.

UNESCO'S mission is to contribute to the building of peace, the eradication of poverty, sustainable development and intercultural dialogue through education, the sciences, culture, communication and information.

International Theatre Institute

The purpose of the International Theatre Institute is to promote international exchange of knowledge and practice in theatre arts in order to consolidate peace and friendship between peoples, to deepen mutual understanding and increase creative co-operation between all people in the theatre arts.

To achieve this purpose, the ITI shall:

- encourage activities and creation in the field of the live performing arts (drama, dance, music theatre)
- aim at an enlargement of the existing collaboration between performing arts disciplines and organizations, both national and international
- establish international offices and foster the establishment of ITI Centres in all countries
- collect documents, disseminate all types of information and issue publications in the realm of the performing arts
- co-operate actively in the development of the “Theatre of Nations” and encourage and co-ordinate the organization of theatrical congresses, workshops and meetings of experts, as well as festivals, exhibitions and competitions, both on regional and interregional levels, in co-operation with its members
- defend the free development of the performing arts and contribute to the protection of the rights of performing arts professionals.

To achieve this within the ITI, the member Centres of the organization shall be guided by the principles of mutual respect of the national traditions of each country

National Association of Youth Theatres (England)

NAYT is the only development agency supporting youth theatres in England.

Founded in 1982, NAYT works with over 1,000 groups and individuals to support the development of youth theatre activity through information and support services, advocacy, training, participation and partnerships. Registration is free and open to any group or individual using theatre techniques in their work with young people, outside of formal education.

NAYT's vision is to ensure that every young person has the opportunity to take part – as a right – in safe, empowering, challenging theatre of excellence.

NAYT's mission is to make a positive difference to young people's lives by supporting their participation in, and access to excellent youth theatre.

Promote YT (Scotland)

An umbrella organisation for youth theatre in Scotland which organises festivals, skills training and information exchange.

A Review of Youth Theatre in 2003 identified over 300 youth theatres in existence in Scotland, around 8,000 young people taking part in youth theatre every week and a strong demand for an organisation which would provide a national network and resource, respond to issues/gaps in provision and facilitate development.

The findings of consultations with young people and youth theatre practitioners carried out at the Inaugural Youth Theatre Seminar on November 2003 in Aberdeen, formed the basis of Promote YT's objectives and key activities.

Promote YT (Scotland) was incorporated on the 29 June 2004 and has been supported annually by the Scottish Arts Council.

National Association for Youth Drama (Ireland)

NAYD (National Association for Youth Drama) is the development organisation for youth theatre and youth drama in Ireland. NAYD supports youth drama in practice and policy, and supports the sustained development of youth theatres in Ireland.

NAYD advocates the inherent value and the unique relationship between young people and theatre as an art form, and is committed to extending and enhancing young people's understanding of theatre and raising the artistic standards of youth theatre across the country.

NAYD supports youth drama in practice through an annual programme that includes the National Youth Theatre, National and Regional festivals of youth theatres, commissioning new writing, publications, resources, training and other services as well as research and policy development.

With a membership of over 50 youth theatres throughout the country, NAYD supports the sustained development of youth theatres in partnership with local authorities, youth services, theatres and arts centres.

In addition, NAYD is involved in developing Drama in Education in Ireland, and works closely with the formal and non-formal education sector.

European Drama Encounters (EDERED)

Founded in 1985. The first Children's Encounter took place in 1982; the first Youth Encounter was held in 1987. An initiative by the Council of Europe: "Children and Culture in Contemporary Europe".

Membership of the organisation is open to those who have been responsible for the running of an Encounter in their own countries and to those who plan to organise one in the near future.

The Encounters usually last for two weeks and consist of an intensive inter-cultural workshop programme and planned social activities. Participants do not bring prepared theatre performances to the Encounters which culminate in a final showing or presentation.

The Encounter exists for the benefit of the participants and therefore all activities of the organisation must always have that focus. To that end these Six Principles of EDERED have been developed and they form the philosophical basis for all Encounters.

- The Encounter should be open-minded and welcome diverse ways of working in drama/theatre and facilitate diverse approaches in methodology.
- The Encounter should provide opportunities for sharing these diverse approaches.
- The environment of an Encounter is non-competitive.
- The Encounter is a process of listening and inter-cultural co-operation and provides opportunities for children/young people/leaders to share their ideas and experiences in a safe environment.
- Each Encounter must recognise the unique opportunity provided for the social interaction of children/young people from diverse cultures.
- It should be fun

More International Theatre Associations

European Theatre Convention (ETC)

The European Theatre Convention is a public theatre membership network founded in 1988 to promote contemporary playwriting, to support the mobility of artists and to develop the artistic exchange throughout Europe.

The ETC advocates for the sector on a political level, intensifies the relations with the future theatre audience and encourages the intercultural dialogue between theatre professionals through outstanding common multilingual artistic projects.

Counting today 41 member theatres in 24 countries, the ETC has become the most important pan-European public theatre network. All member theatres are producing theatres with most of them working with a permanent artistic ensemble.

The ETC is an artistic network to foster European theatre collaboration and to engage in the multicultural dialogue amongst theatre professionals and with the audience. With its members, the ETC advocates throughout its programmes and across Europe for the emergence of a European identity and the linguistic diversity on European stages with a focus on activities for young people.

The ETC promotes and defends the richness of European languages in contemporary drama and has established a wide range of artistic activities.

International Federation of Actors (FIA)

Our members are the trade unions, guilds and associations that work hard every day to ensure that performers can work safely, earn a decent living from their profession and the commercial exploitation of their talent, train to adjust to a rapidly changing environment, enjoy an adequate social protection and equal opportunities and be granted intellectual property rights on their performances.

At international level, FIA steps in and brings these same values to a higher ground, where the lobbying machinery is intricate, national interests are traded and rules are bargained to shape our daily life. But FIA is not only an indispensable lobbying tool for all of us. It is, perhaps most importantly, a powerful heart for all its members, many of which have directly experienced the solidarity that has always been its trademark. Whether in the midst of industrial actions, facing sudden hardship, struggling against political regimes and in countless other occasions, the mutual support of our unions has been a critical asset for those members.

International University Theatre Association

(AITU-IUTA)

The International University Theatre Association was founded in 1994 to develop and promote recognized post-secondary activity in theatre training, creation, research and theoretical and practical research, throughout the world, at the level of university or higher studies. The IUTA is present in every continent and has members in over fifty countries.

Designed by and for people from universities and other types of post-secondary learning institutions, the IUTA is a unique forum where teachers, practitioners, creators, scholars and theorists can share discoveries and discuss common concerns. The IUTA provides a space for both exchanges and services (through the presence of festival organizers), and is open to all members of the academic community with an interest in theatre. The IUTA holds a World Congress every two years.

The aim of the International Association of University Theatres is to develop and promote university theatre worldwide. 'University theatre', in this context, means any theatrical activity carried out within higher and tertiary education institutions, as training, creative or research activities, either theoretical or practical.

Aware of the role theatre plays in fostering dialogue and understanding between cultures, the association promotes exchanges and collaboration between university theatres (be it spontaneous student theatre, assisted, vocational or professional work) as well as contacts with amateur and professional theatres.

UK, Ireland & International Theatre Associations

Paul Harman:2011

There are many voluntary associations for drama and theatre by, with and for children and young people in the UK and Ireland and a wider international family of associations and organisations supports the promotion and development of theatre and drama worldwide.

The relationship between these international associations is complex. Some are semi-official. The International Theatre Institute is recognised by UNESCO as the representative organisation for all the performing arts but some others, such as UNIMA and AITA-IATA, are also regarded as partners by UNESCO. As UNESCO is based in Paris, many associations founded in the 1950's are known by their French names or acronyms.

Festivals, Puppets, International Exchange, Development Organisations in Theatre for Young Audiences and Drama Education.

This material has been gathered with financial support from Arts Council England, through a bursary for international development of UK Theatre for Young Audiences
